Many people are doing their shopping online nowadays. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of shopping online.
Buying things over the internet has become a fashion these days. Although, the internet has eased out buyer's job to a great extent, but at the same time, it has also given birth to some major concerns.
There are numerous benefits due to which shoppers prefer to buy products online. Firstly, online shopping is time efficient. This can be validated by the fact that neither buyers have to travel to market, nor they have to go to multiple shops just to get the best deal. Secondly, it is economical to buy online as dealers and retailers do not need physical set up which can add up to the cost of products. Last but not the least, online shoppers have a sense of self satisfaction while purchasing products, as they have a plethora of resources to compare the products in terms of quality and price, before they actually buy those.
Nevertheless, there are various concerns related to online shopping due to which some buyers may refrain from shopping online. One of the major problems in online shopping is that customers can not inspect products physically. One has to rely on the given specifications in order to make up their mind for purchasing. Another concern is related to online frauds. While making online purchases, customers have to share their credit card or debit card details online, thus, their confidential information becomes vulnerable and it can be misused by some fraudulent elements. Apart from this, it is not possible to buy online if a product is instantly required. As an instance, if a person urgently needs a medicine, he is most likely to buy it from local store, as online stores generally take a few days to deliver.
To conclude, although online shopping enhances shopping experience by being time and cost efficient, but it also raises some serious concerns pertaining to product quality and banking information security. Hence, it is up to buyers' conscience to evaluate the pros and cons before opting for online purchase.

Students need to start this section with the text and not the questions. The activity of describing the narrative to someone is a form of paraphrasing. By doing so, one forces himself to read slowly enough to understand the main idea of the Paragraph. Students generally refer to IELTS match the Heading practice pdf available online. They are easy to find and include a list of matching headings of IELTS practice. The IELTS Reading test is designed to test a wide range of reading skills of applicants. A significant part of the IELTS Reading test is matching headings to paragraphs of text. So, all students planning to give the IELTS this section should be emphasized in the course of preparation. Most students fear the task of matching and finding it extremely difficult. However, with some simple tricks and practice, you can easily find the right answer. In this blog, we will see a list of IELTS headers practice reading and techniques to combine them with precise answers. Coinciding with headers IELTS academic degrees that match the reading test require students to match the paragraphs. It is therefore vital to practice the selection of the titles of the paragraph and to adapt them to the paragraphs of a text. Continue reading to know about the method to efficiently combine games. IELTS Coincidence Head Method Practice Unlike popular belief, this section in the IELTS reading test is not rocket science. There is a particular technique and strategy that can be used to nail these simple questions. Step 1: Read the paragraph Students need to start this section with the text and not with the questions. The idea is to read paragraph (usually paragraph A first) to find out exactly what it is about. As a reader and observer, it should be imagined that they have to describe the paragraph to someone who has not read it after finishing it. In addition, the description should be as short as possible. Taking into account that objective, read the paragraph carefully. This activity of describing the narrative to someone is a form of paraphrase. In doing so, one is forced to read slowly so that they can understand the main idea of the paragraph. This section tries to capture the main points and not locate the details. Second Step: Matching Heading to Paragraph After reading the paragraph and getting an idea of the topic, go to the header list and observe. Try to read each header in the given order. It's vital that theresist the temptation to jump from departure to a paragraph or address the textThat's because it can be a recipe for disaster, and one could end up losing a lot of your time. Instead, if students spend that time reading through each header carefully, they would probably memorize the headings and the correct answers much faster upon reaching paragraphs D or E. For paragraphs A and B, it is vital to remain strict with yourself. Read the paragraph only once and read all titles. When reading each header, students should ask themselves if this is the case. If an applicant has carefully read the paragraph, he could answer the question effortlessly. Tips for Heading Matches with IELTS Reading paragraphs Read to learn about IELTS Reading tips for the headers list. 1. Try to first examine the shortest paragraphs The reason is simple. Doing so allows students to ski through them faster, leaving less games to choose for the longer paragraphs. 2. Read through the list of headers correctly Allows students to become familiar with the titles. One should emphasize the keywords that help the dianas words that need to scan or identify the main idea. 3. Look for synonyms Like other sections of the IELTS reading test, one should be able to find similar words in the paragraphs to those of the header. Therefore, students must be aware of the synonyms. A common error is seeking identical words both in the heading and in the paragraph and avoiding synonyms. For example, a key word in the header can be difficult to work, but the word you are looking for can be a synonym for hard work, assiduous or diligent. 4. Go on if the question is that it consumes a lot of time. Questions relating to the departure of the paragraph in the IELTS reading test maya lot of time sometimes. As a test taker, one should not give more than 20 minutes to each reading passage. If some questions take too long, it is better to move on and go back to them later. 5. Ask questions about thisfirst Always try to get the questions with games out of the way first because the titles summarize the text. That's why they can help you analyze the answers to the other questions. 6. Read the instructions carefully Do so let students check if they can use a title more than once. 7. Difference between ideas Applicants should seek to distinguish between the main ideas and the additional information in the paragraph so that they can easily coincide with the titles. 8. Do not write the words Your answer will be a numeral (such as iv, vi or ix) or a letter. So avoid writing words in the answer. 9. Beware of the most general heading The reason is that the general heading is the first paragraph or conclusion. Heading Strategies with the paragraphs In addition to the above-mentioned tips, here are some advanced techniques that can be extremely beneficial for students. Draw every paragraph in turn and quickly find out what is precisely the matter. Try to make your own header in a couple of words and match the header that looks closer to it. Try to predict a possible sequence of headers before looking at the text. After matching the titles, read them in order. Help students see if the sequence makes sense. The last sentence of each paragraph is vital. Therefore, you need to read it carefully to find specific details. Try to predict a possible sequence of headers before looking at the text. Important points to remember There are some mistakes that students tend to make, and it is vital to be careful with them. Keep reading to know what they are. As there are always more heading options than the paragraphs on the list, one should be careful as they are. Individuals sometimes write the wrong Roman numeral on the answer sheet .ovitacifingis .ovitacifingis se ofariĀP le selauc sal arap azilitu onu euq satsseupser sal ed saton saralac renetnaM .onamor laremun ed ametisil le noc esrazirailimaf nebed setnaidutse sol euq es rop sE thereĀĀĀs a risk of using the same Heading twice. Remember that having a noun from a Heading that is in the Paragraph doesĉĀĀĀt guarantee they match. So, one must read carefully to check. Sample Paragraph for matching Heading task Type In the test, students will have to do a complete reading of multiple Paragraphs. However, itĉĀĀĀs essential to practice with one Paragraph first and gradually increase the number. Here is a practice paragraph for students with questions. The individuals from Yoruba, Nigeria, classify their towns in two ways. While the temporary settlements set up in the country to support work are called ĉĀĀĀAbaeĀĀĀ, fixed towns with their own governments are called ĉĀĀĀIluĉĀĀĀ. Mostly, Ilu tends to be larger than Aba. However, the distinction is not one of size. So, declining Ilu can be small, and some abas is large. In that sense, there is no quintessential Yoruba town despite some features being common to most towns. Questions for Matching Heading with Answers Question: Match the correct heading to the paragraphA I. Town facilities II. Colonisation III. Type of settlements IV. Urban divisions V. Architectural home styles VI. City defences VII. Government buildings VIII. Historical foundations IX. The residences of the rulers Answer: (iii) Types of settlements The first sentence in the Paragraph talks about classifications which are very similar to types (synonyms). Afterwards, the Paragraph goes on to talk about settlements which is another clue. Simply by skimming the Paragraph, one can conclude that ĉĀĀĀtypes of settlementsĀĀĀ is the correct answer as it also discusses the two types of towns ĉĀĀĀ temporary and fixed. Conclusion One of the required tasks of the IELTS Academic Reading test is matching headings. Students need to identify the main idea of the Paragraph and match it to the relevant Heading. In order to successfully complete this task, one needs to be skilled in their reading abilities. Generally see IELTS coincides with the practice Heading PDF available in line. They are easier to find and include a list of equal headers of the practice of IELTS. Such practical questions can improve their skills not only in coincident headers but a mention of other IELTS reading tasks. In most, students receive headings (I-IX) for pages a, b, c and d. However, it can vary from test test. However, the headers are always more than the pages. The objective of this blog was to help students match the heads more effectively in the IELTS reading test. We hope that the tips and techniques mentioned above in the list of headers IELTS The reading practice comes in hand and allows you to write down better.
